According to the US National Library of Medicine's MedlinePlus resource, a fever (aka, pyrexia) is technically a higher-than-normal body temperature. That normal body temperature can vary from person to person but is usually about 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit (though one recent study claims it has dropped to 97.9°F over the last two centuries).

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention considers a reading of 100.4 degrees Fahrenheit a fever.

While an actual temperature reading is the best diagnostic tool for fevers, the CDC also says it considers a fever to be present when a person feels hot to the touch, has previously reported feeling feverish (possibly with chills), or looks flushed or glassy-eyed

4: Send to requested office, if no one is in there. If it is occupied they will need to have a seat in meeting room and wait to be called.

5: When one person has left the requested office another can go on in. Notify the door Officer the office is cleared and cleaned to send the next person.

6: Mask must be worn when in contact with the public.
